

Studying UCD Languages, Linguistics & Cultures

The modules listed below are indicative of the extensive range of modules available

Year One

Engage With The Principles

All students take an interdisciplinary module: Introduction to Languages, Linguistics and Cultures. They will also take three modules in the language of their choice, three modules in Linguistics and further modules in cultures and literatures. Students may also choose modules from within a second language.

Study one or two languages:

French, German, Greek, Irish, Italian, Latin, Spanish

Year Two

Deepen Your Understanding

Students study their chosen language at intermediate level and continue with their studies in linguistics. They will also study culture and literature.

Year Three

Broaden Your Horizons

Students may spend an academic year studying abroad or they may combine a semester abroad with an internship or a research project.

Year Four

Refine Your Knowledge

Students will study advanced modules in their chosen language and in linguistics. They will also choose from a range of in-programme options in culture and literature.

You will complete an extended research project/dissertation in your chosen specialised area.
